The collection consists of financial and business records including account books, ledgers, cash books etc. (1837-1964); insurance documents (1871-1936); inventories (1920-1921); J.A. Weir minute books (1896-1921); De La Rue minute books (1919-1948); trade lists and price lists (1849-1911), registers. The collection also contains designs of material produced, including several pieces by Owen Jones, together with proofs and specimens of material such as cards, tickets, labels, diaries, stationery and programmes (1787-1960). Note books and photographs cover a wide range of subjects, including the earliest known English cheque (1664). Printed material includes various extracts and articles from publications relating to De La Rue (1749-1963), together with copies of De La Rue journal nos. 1-46 (1947-1963), Formica journal (incomplete, 1956-1961), Formica vol. 5 no. 3 (1961), Formica news vol. 1 no. 6 (1961), Furniture today nos. 1-10 (1961-1965), System vol. 1 nos. 1 & 2 (1961), nos. 11 & 12 (1964). Other material relates to members of the De La Rue family, such as 23 extracts from Guernsey church registers, deeds, employment agreements, engravings of Warren De La Rue (1882 & 1894), and news cuttings. The collection also includes specifications for the envelope-folding machine patented by Warren De La Rue.

The Collection covers the year's 1830-1965.

The physical extent of the collection is c. 50 boxes, plus c. 250 ledgers.

Introduction

Thomas De La Rue set up as printer, stationer and manufacturer of fancy goods in London in 1821, having previously been a Guernsey newspaper publisher. The firm of De La Rue was mainly associated with printing postage stamps (from 1855), banknotes, playing cards, diaries and stationery. After the First World War the company became involved in boilers (Potterton's) and plastics (Formica), also launching the successful fountain pen known as the Onoto. De La Rue is still trading and now describes itself as 'the world's largest commercial security printer and paper maker, involved in the production of over 150 national currencies and a wide range of security documents'.

Warren de la Rue (1815-1889), son of Thomas de la Rue, worked in his father's business, where he invented an envelope-folding machine, but also became known as an astronomer and physicist. He carried out research on the discharge of electricity in gases and was the inventor of the silver chloride battery and the photoheliograph for use in celestial photography.

One of the specimen's was previously framed by De La Rue and had a caption, which details the following information:
"Our records disclose that 2000 were printed in gold and three colours after the design by Owen Jones. In addition, four invitation cards were specially printed for T.R.H. The Prince and Princess of Wales, The Prince and Princess Christian, The Duke of Cambridge and princess Mary Adelaide, and H.S.H. The Prince of Teck. Fourteen programme books were also printed in gold bronze and bound in silk with gold lettering, and a portfolio in Imperial blue velvet lined with white silk lettered in gold was prepared specially for Queen Victoria."

- MS 937 45 Draft designs for various items of stationery

1) Paper design for the wording/engraving on a sword. The engraving reads as follows: "This sword was made in Sydney of materials wholly produced in New South Wales for presentation to His Royal Highness the lamented Prince Consort at the London Exhibition of 1862. Presented to The Honorable Terence Aubrey Murray, President of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, Executive Commissioner for that Colony in connexion with the Paris Exhibition of 1867. By his fellow Commissioners in recognition of his zeal in his capacity as their President and of his uniform courtesy to them. Sydney 20

September 1867. W.B. Clarke M.A.F.G.S, Chairman of Committee."

2) These designs may have been produced by Owen Jones but cannot be verified by the archivist
